

Christopher S. Yoo

Christopher S. Yoo is the John H. Chestnut Professor of Law, Communication, and Computer & Information Science and the Founding Director of the Center for Technology, Innovation and Competition at the University of Pennsylvania. He is the author of over one hundred scholarly works and has taught at over a dozen universities around the world. His major research projects include comparing due process in antitrust enforcement practices in China, Europe, and the U.S.; analyzing these jurisdictions' responses to big data; assessing antitrust liability for high-tech platforms; and analyzing the technical determinants of optimal interoperability. He has also created innovative joint degree programs designed to produce a new generation of professionals with advanced training in both law and engineering.

Professor Yoo received his A.B. from Harvard University, his M.B.A. from UCLA, and his J.D. from Northwestern University. Before entering the academy, Professor Yoo clerked for Justice Anthony M. Kennedy of the Supreme Court of the United States and practiced law with the predecessor firm to Hogan Lovells under the supervision of now-Chief Justice John G. Roberts, Jr. He is frequently called to testify before the U.S. Congress, Federal Trade Commission, Department of Justice Antitrust Division, Federal Communications Commission, foreign governments, and international organizations. He has also served as a non-governmental advisor to the International Competition Network and is currently serving as a member of the Federal Communication Commission's Broadband Deployment Advisory Committee and the joint European Law Institute-American Law Institute project on Principles for a Data Economy.
